TODAY

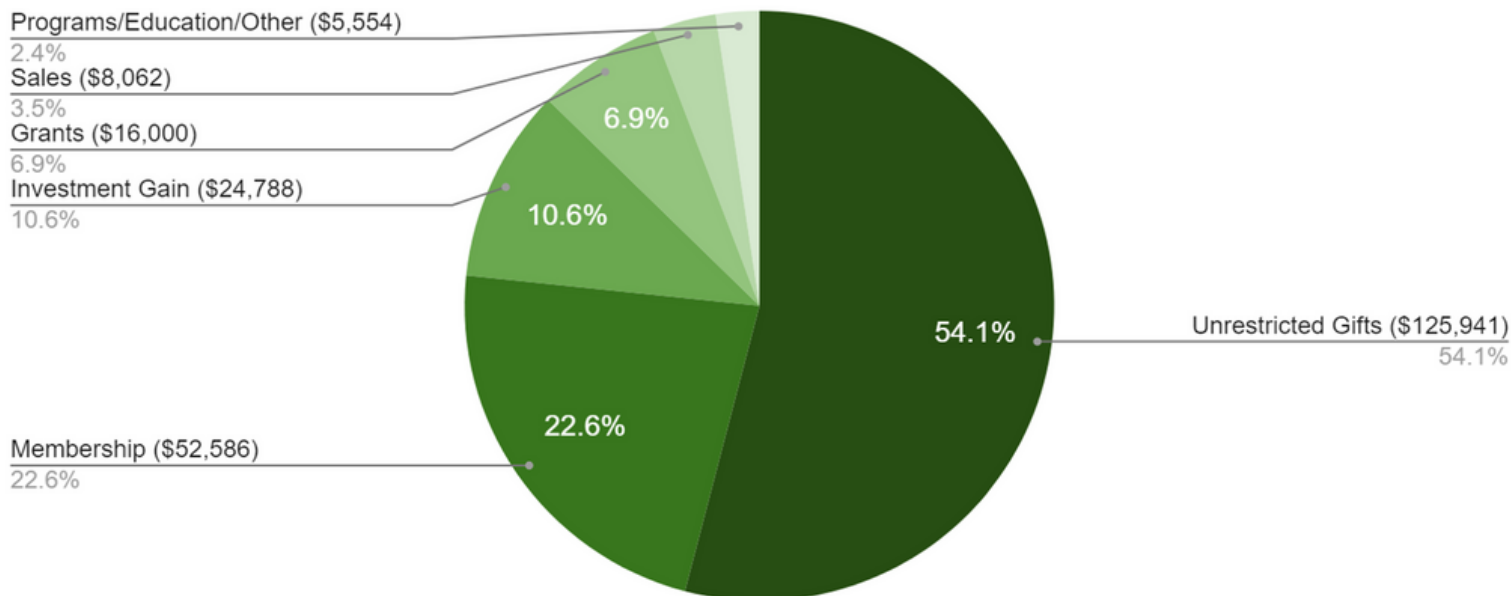

Located in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, the Adams County Historical Society (ACHS) preserves over three centuries of remarkable local history in one of our nation's most historic settings. ACHS educates and inspires the community about its past, present, and future. Currently located at the Wolf House on the campus of the United Lutheran Seminary, ACHS houses a small research library and presents frequent programs for the community and visitors.

TOMORROW

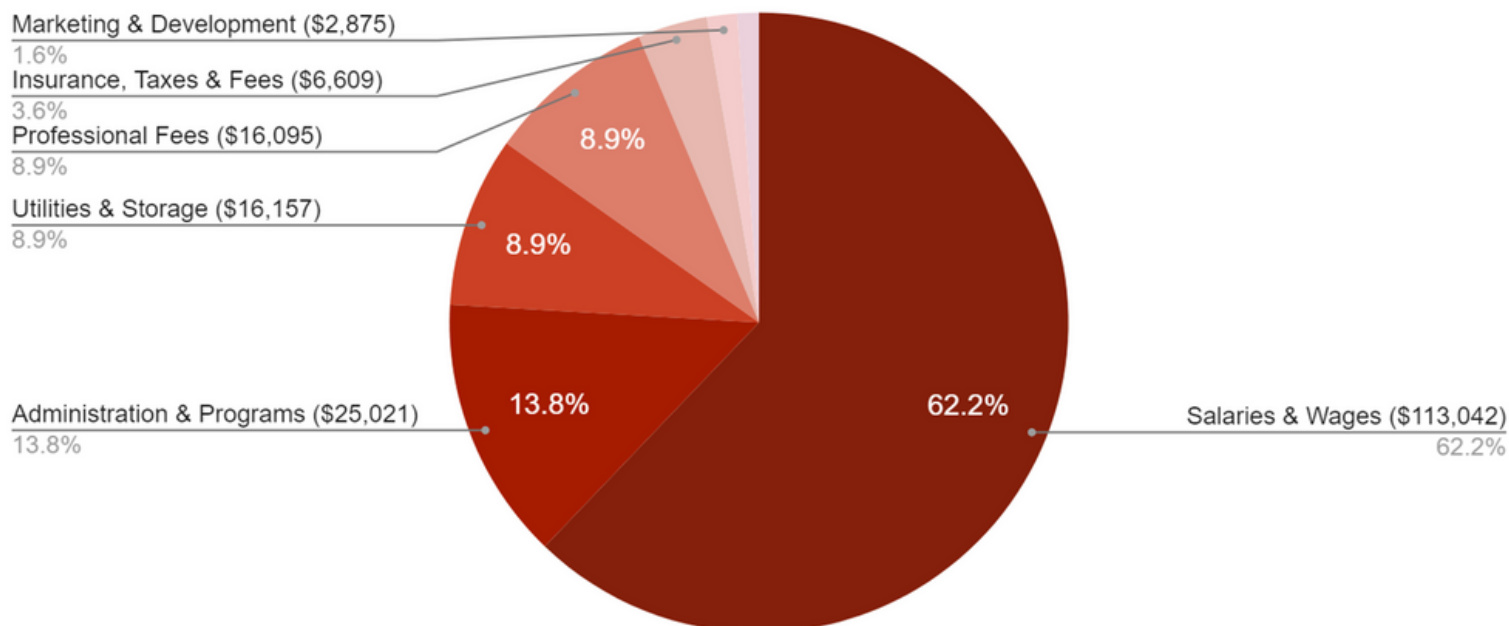

In 2019, ACHS laid the groundwork for a capital campaign to build a new Museum, Archives and Education Center in Gettysburg. With a goal of opening in 2022, our new headquarters will ensure the safety and preservation of millions of documents, images, and artifacts currently in danger of deterioration or outright destruction. It will also allow us to share the incredible story of Adams County with community members and visitors alike - exposing new and diverse audiences to fascinating human interest stories of national significance.
